- Crypto Market Recap

Dear Shareholders,
Dear friends of coinIX,

The early 2023 financial markets have shown a very positive development, but they remain controversial. Even though cryptocurrencies started to decouple from the stock market and outperformed the traditional markets, both worlds still go hand in hand in many aspects. Fundamentally, however, the first quarter showed a thoroughly positive trend for crypto investments.

The stricter monetary policy of the majority of developed countries due to the high inflation of last year might lead to a recession with a lagging effect. The recent issues of some banks indicated the first signs of instability. We believe that it will be difficult for cryptocurrencies to start another bull run in such an environment.

Regardless of the macroeconomic uncertainty in the short- to medium-term, we see how builders and developers continue to work on the blockchain infrastructure in the background as yet another big update of Ethereum has shown. Additionally, the risks associated with bank deposits highlighted the power of decentralised assets. Accordingly, we see the foundation for a broader adoption rate on exactly the right track and view the current environment as a huge opportunity.

In this update, we will share the latest news about coinIX and our portfolio companies.

Kind regards,

Karl Gero Wendeborn, CEO

On February 1, 2023 coinIX moved together with NFTrust into a shared office space in the modern business complex at Großer Burstah 42 in 20457 Hamburg.

The location is situated in the middle of Hamburg's city center and is perfectly suited as a headquarter. The joint use of the space by NFTrust and coinIX results in close cooperation between the professional Blockchain analysts.

The physical proximity enables synergies between the two teams as there are a number of common interfaces where both areas of NFTs and Blockchain Infrastructure can benefit from each other.
